

Clean Air Schools Programme

We are offering Clean Air Schools education sessions for the next academic year, so from September 2025. The sessions are popular so please contact us and get your sessions booked in.

The Clean Air School's Programme education sessions are tailored and designed with activities and interventions that cater for different ages, groups, abilities and interests carried out within a school a learning environment.

The activities are stimulating and engaging for children, enabling them to explore their environment whilst learning and taking into consideration measures to take in improving air quality and reduce emissions.

The programme has an educational enrichment which integrates educational components that supports a child's academic learning through critical and creative thinking which is aligned with the national curriculum. All activities, classroom and community based have been designed taking children into consideration.

Clean Air Schools- engagement and awareness element of the programme is a behavioural and social change approach involving children, parents and guardians in a campaign outside school gates to highlight the health impacts of stationary vehicle idling.

Please state what your school is interested in and for what year group: Classroom-based learning session, Parent learning session, ie coffee morning/afternoon, Assembly or Anti-idling campaign.
