

Sharena Lee Satti

Sharena Lee Satti is an Independent Artist, Poet, Author, Spoken word artist and Workshop facilitator. She is really passionate about poetry and self-expression through creative art and spoken word.

She was born in Bradford, West Yorkshire and lived in Windhill, Shipley for most of her youth but now resides in Bradford. She writes poetry about her own personal life, current environmental issues, social stigmas, homelessness, poverty and discrimination. She speaks openly about her past and the struggles she had to endure. Growing up in a dysfunctional environment. Sharena left school education at a very young age due to her home life, she was left caring for her Mother and younger siblings which cost her, her own education. She battled through her childhood when all the odds were against her. She struggled with her own identity being mix raced, (English, Indian and Pakistani) and also finding the will to push through life's barriers that's she faced. She found her voice through poetry and writing. It gave her a new lease of life. Which after a turbulent childhood, Her book "She" is to be published by The Verve poetry press this Autumn 2020. She uses her natural talent to encourage others to find their voice through poetry and self-expression.

She shares her love of spoken word through performance art and has contributed immensely the past few years, she is an influential, uplifting voice in Bradford, spreading her empathy and love of poetry in her local community, She believes in the power of art and poetry and is truly passionate about helping others and inspiring others to see their own potential. Being a voice for the voices unheard.

She is an education influencer. Sharena has been nominated for the British Indian awards, Media arts and culture and has recently being associated with The Verve poetry Press, Chelving, Red Bull amaphiko, Film and Photographer Tim Smith and Balbir Dance, Kala Sangam (The artist takeover) Bradford Festival, Bradford Literature Festival, and BBC radio, NHS
