Using Reflective Language to Manage Behaviour and Strengthen Attachment Relationships

This course enables school staff to:

- Understand how young people communicate through their behaviour
- Explore the concept of reflective language and the benefits of using it as a behaviour management technique
- Identify young people's different attachment styles
- Understand how these impact on relationships in schools
- Practice using appropriate reflective responses to implement during the school day

"Inspirational training. It helped me understand how children may have different issues and the reasons for this"

"Excellent strategies to support children, with really useful examples"

Cath Hunter is a therapeutic consultant, trainer, play therapist and author

Cath specialises in understanding how children communicate through their behaviour and ways to support and help them and the adults who work with them. She has over thirty years' experience of working with children and families and has worked in primary schools for the last twelve years.
